A BORN SOLDIER.

Major-General George J. Stannard, of Bur-ington, Vt., died saddenly at Washington the morning of the let inst. Upwards of sixty-five years of age, broken with wounds, private mis-fortures and powerty, this gallant one-annel major-general of the war for the Union had for ome thre must acted us a doorgasper of the exrune through a creding a nonstance of the centify gallery of the house of representatives, and was one of the fourteen who composed the solding roll under the coorkeeper of the house, a meanatholy reduction in circumstances for a man that had outside 15,000 troops so brillianty; and brevely in action as to be thanked personally 17 Gon. Brant, who after the war offered him a major?s place in the regular arms. Upon the announcement of Stannard's death the house passed a resolution diecting the proposent of six months' salary to bis heirs and funeral expenses out of the houseconingent fund. The house could not do less in respect for any decent employer they ought to have done much more for a man-who fought at the front from Bull Hun, Joly 21st, 18-21, to Fort Harrison, September 20th, 18-25 whose, with his division, formed en ediction, his stormed like fort, and iornical on eitheron, hi stormed the for, and lost his right-arm, replaining she fraunts efforts of the enemy to rotake it. Stanmard was a born soldier. When the war broke out he was a bookkeeper in a forbarry at St. Albaay, Vaghad never received a particle of military educahad never received a garticle of multiary educa-tion, although always it man of military tasts, so far as he could grately it as an officer of the lumsy, cornerally militar that Vermont feebly supported before the even. He was the first men to volunther in his state in answer to Lin-coln's preclamation of April 15, 1881, and as the flentenant-colonel of the Second Vermont the Heutenant-colonel of the Second Vermont volunteers, led his regiment into action at Bull Run, within thirty days after their muster information. He gerred gallantly through the Political Colonetry of 1832, and was pornoted to the colonetry of the Ninth Vermont. In March, 1833, he was made brigadier-general, and greatly distinguished timeself at the head of the Second Vermont brigade at dettysburg. When Pickett charged our center the afternoon of the third day. Lea ordered Gen. Which the property of th bird day, Les ordered! Gen. Wilcox to move at the same time to protect the flank of the charging column from attack. Wilcox falled to start his though in time, and Stannard, seeing the opportunity, obtained relectant permission from Gen. Hangock to throw bits force of about 2000 men on the exposed flank of Pickett. Under S'annard's fire an I that of other troops who imitated his example Pickett's column, which had got among our guns, liberally crue bleit away; then promptly turning, Stannard caught Witeox, now tardily compting on, and fairly scooped him up before he could change his formation to meet atlack. Stannard was wounded while executing this decisive movement; he was again wounded at Cold Harden whee his charged the courter was the charge the courter was the courter. the head of his brigade in the eighteenth army corne lesing sixty line officers killed and her, where he charged the enemy's works at corps, losing sixty line officers killed and woulded, including every member of his per-sonal stail. Defore Petersburg he was again wounder, and finally lost his right arm at the shoulder in storming Fort Harrison September 10, 1821, under the personal eye of Grant. This threw him out of notice service. He was breighted under-general for gallantry October 28, 1814, and he was invetered out August 21, 1865. ... 1e was appointed collector of customs at Burling-ton, Vermont in 1899, and held the office for six years, reflicing in May, 1872, under the cloud of altered confusion in his appounts.

. GAMELING AS A BUSINESS.

In the early days of the Urion Pacific railway and estary days of the change as to the same sharper remined from theyenned to this caps without his scalp. A friend asked him "what sort of place was Cheyenne?" He answered, "Well, people go 'm and down the street all day long theating one another, and they call that Tusiness." The stuy right stand for a very good defaulton of Wall street, the accordance of the transfer of which have the same of the transfer of the transfer. where every day men of he pest, honorphie, so-her stock, educated to business by men of inner stock, editorized to business by men to the flexible however, gaintle away happiness, for-tone, reputation, and, worse than all, and sal-sion gamble away their laterapity and their lib-city. When the world heart by tolograph, as it does every whick, of the sulfate of some man who, without social vices or excavagint hab-ds, for years no exemplary fitizen, abdorbed in business and devoted to his tam ly, founders in middle life on the rocks or slake in the quick smids of Whil street, the world says, with a smear, "Another good man gone wrong?" but this man probably has led, buttl fasci tated by the respentiese of speculation in the street, an irreproachable and useful life. For many years he was as good as he appeared to he; a pure and upright husband, to economical and capa-ble man of business, Humeloss in all his com-mercial conduct up to the line thathe was mas-tered by the mania for stock-gambling that has ruiped as many men mornly and mentally as any fara-bank that ever flourished in the metrop any raph-maintain ever non-mass in the metropolis. The difficulty with the whole business of gambling is not clone the material losses in each, but if is the splittud injury and loss is character, that it is so difficult to reduce, it is this splittud debility incurred by long gambling in Wall savet that is the incornally thing; it is this draws inturity good and incornable man, made desperate by losses, to consent to go wrong, and from this standpoint[i is not extravagant to say that the present catamity that can possibly har ben to a good husiness man is to gaushlo in Wall street and make money, beautso as a trule he never stops feeting on the management is exampled. to wager of his own, and tien is let to wager of his 60%, and toon in this lever-ish, despectate moud to fa quite fits yet to bet money lind is not his own. If it be asked why do good men venture joviers out; but and haves ought to tread we answer, List the false and tyrapulcal morals of society which stimumaking no distinction between legitimate business and speculation: between wealth won by honest, steady, industrial effort and organization, and wealth won by a pack of marked cards, manipulated by a pack of conscienceless cheats. It is this beastly utilitarianism that sends to the penitediary so many men for finaricial fraud and theft that had happy, bonest and homerable careers until they turned gumb era and tried to get something for no hing. To-day their wives and children are pacpers; they are in prison, where he who enters leaves all hope behind; they have lost all that makes life worth living, because they could not endure ito graw rich by the slow, steady effort of Lonest industry. They behave like the fellow who played chess with the devil; he bet or every game, and finally found himself atterly destitute, and in his destitotion he bet his soul on the game and not it. So it is with the honest man who gambles in the "street;" be gambles against the cunning, the coolness, the pitiless rapadity of the devil, only to stake his soul at last and lose it, and be compassionately known among his triends as "good man gone wrong" known among the crowd as a bankrupt suck gambler, who be

PROTECT ON OR PREE THADE. By Henry George Published by Henry George & Co., No. 16 Aster Flace, New York.

Astor Place, New York.

Henry George is probably best known to the Americar public as the author of a back with the taking fille of "Progress and Poverty
Despite the fact that this work contains much fallacious philosophy, it bears the ment of having been written by a conscientions thinker and one who evidently means well in his efforts for the betterment of the human face. Therefore, Whenever Henry George has something to say he commends in audience. A few years ago Mr teorge was unknown save to a limited number and he owes tin great measure to the folly of a superserviceable magletrate in Ireland that his name is now universally familiar Arrested on a charge of treasen while traveling as an American citizen in Ireland, his release was demanded by our preriment, and when Mr. George returned to this country see relary I reluging, sen, with natural fact, invited the upure iman to call of on him at the stric-der arther to. HAVI BOOK Ct. I MCLISH HISTORY Based on the Sectures of the late M J (recet. By Frauchs H. Underwood Lee & Shepard, Hostor This handbook, in the compass of a single olume, covers the entire period of English volume, covers the entire period of English his-lory, from the earliest times down to isso. It is based on the ier ures of the late M. J. Guest which were prepared for the 'College of Men and Women' in London. These Mr. Francis H. Lodeswood has rewritted, so as to make them suitable for Air succan readers, and has added a supplementary chapter on English literature of the nineiteenth certury. Mr. Guest's work oc-cupies a deserved y high place by resson of its candor, impartial by and comp'eteness, and in introcucing it to American readers Mr Under wood has done a commendable thing. While primarily designed for the use of schools, the look will make a valuatile addition to any the SENATE. Washington, June 12.—After routine morning business. Whithorne addressed the senate lar favor of Frye's bill, to promote the pointical progress and commercial prosperity of American whithorne premised by begging the indulgence and parton of the schäte, if he transgrees and parton of the schäte, if he transgrees and parton of the schäte, if he transgrees are the transgrees and the rested his justification on the great interest he took in the bill introduced by his triend, the honorable senator from Maline (First), with whom he had the pleasure of long assecration in the house of representatives. He believed that the interests of the people of his sia a, as well as the whole Union, were interpreted with the policy sought to be imaging the United States was interested, but the entire American continent was interested in the policy recommended by the bill.

Whitthorne stated statistics to show the for sign commerce of the world for a series of years, and called attention to the marvelous and grantific growth and expansion shown by those figures. This, he said, showed the importance of the policy indicated in the bill. One of the most eloquent facts of the statistics, however, which whitthorne had found was that which showed the industrial capacity of the United Sates and Europe it was found that the United Sates and Europe it was found that the United Sates and Europe it was found that the United Sates possessed a per cent. Our advantage over any one of the furness was therefore apparent. The great he d for the expansion and growth of our commerce whill there saked, be moliferent to European entones was therefore apparent.
